Cellular interactions constrain tumor growth PNAS

A mathematical model relating tumor heterogeneity at the cellular level to tumor growth at the macroscopic level is described based on a statistical mechanics framework. The model takes into account the number of accessible states available to each cell as well as their long-range coupling

Cell Cell Interactions The Cell NCBI Bookshelf

Direct interactions between cells, as well as between cells and the extracellular matrix, are critical to the development and function of multicellular organisms. Some cell-cell interactions are transient, such as the interactions between cells of the immune system and the interactions that direct white blood cells to sites of tissue inflammation.
