Changing Families New Understandings

chAngIng FAMllles: the 1950s to the Present In the mid-twentieth century, the ideal family was considered to be a married man and woman, com-mitted to each other for life, and their children the heterosexual nuclear family where men were the income earners and women were homemakers (Adams 1997; Bradbury 2005). Underpinning this ideal was the assumption that couples married for love

Families are changing oecd org

Families are changing Families have changed over the past thirty years. This chapter provides an overview of the changes in family fo rmation, household structure, work-life balance, and child well-being. Fertility rates have been persistently low in many OECD countries leading to smaller families. With marriage rates down and divorce rates up, there are an increasing number of children
